Dr. Griffith and Dr. Yongwan Receive NSF Grant

Dr. Daniel Griffith and Dr. Yongwan Chun, along with a colleague from the University of Tennessee, have been selected to receive a grant from the National Science Foundation.

Their research is titled Integration of spatial autocorrelation into location-allocation problems: Enhancing solving capabilities and heuristics. | LEARN MORE

Dr. Searing Awarded NSF Grant

Dr. Elizabeth Searing, assistant professor of public and nonprofit management, has been awarded a grant from the National Science Foundation.

With colleagues from Williams College and University of Massachusetts (Amherst), Dr. Searing will study the motivation behind in-kind donations to nonprofits. This serves as a complement to the team's ongoing work on nonprofit organizations' strategies for handling in-kind donations.
